On July 9 last Ruddy went to J. D. Whitney, manager of the Clifton stables, in State street, and hired a horse and vagon. He said he wanted to move some tes. Ruddy was to return the rig some ites. Ruddy was to return the rig before 9 o'clock that night, but an hour later than the time specified the wagon was found standing in front of a tene-ment-house at 272 Atlantic avenue.

This house is in the rear of Hyama's Pacific street warehouse. To Detectives O'Rorke and Murphy, of the Butler street station, young Arnold said he had been employed about Hyama's warehouse for some time, and that a few days before the burglary Ruddy made arrangements with him to get into the warehouse. The scheme was to go to the ware-house at night and take away a wagon load of goods. On the night of July 9 Arnold entered the warehouse and passed out a bundle of portieres to Ruddy, who took them out through the hallway of the tenement to the wagon.

Some of the tenants thought things were not right, and scared Ruddy off be-fore he could take anything else. He jumped into the wagon and rode away. Ruddy abandoned the rig in Prince street, where it was picked up by Roundaman Farrell, of the Adams street station. 9 o'clock that night, but an hour

Ruddy went back to the stable the next day, and told Whitney where he could find his horse and wagon. In the mean time Detectives Murphy and O'Rorke were in communication with Whitney, Whitney, in looking for the wagon, took Ruddy to 272 Atlantic avenue, where he was placed under arrest. Arnold was found at his home this morning. Detective Murphy says Ruddy's real name is Smith, and that he served four years in Sing Sing for burgiary.

WEBSTER BROUGHT BACK.

tradited from St. Louis.

Detective Sergt. Aloncle, of Inspector McLaughlin's bureau, returned from St. Webster, of 305 Sumner avenue, Brook-lyn, and arraigned him at the Yorkville Police Court on a warrant, charging him with being an embezzler. The complainants are the wholesale grocers, Acker, Merrail & Condit, Chambers street and College place, where Webster was employed as bookkeeper.
Webster is a married man, forty-four years old, and had held the position for over two years. March 2 an examination of his books was sade and it was years old, and had need the posterior over two years. March 2 an examination of his books was made, and it was then discovered that there was a shortage of $700. Webster disappeared on the same day, and the firm placed the matter in the hands of Inspector McLough-

Aloncle was assigned on the case, and, Aloncie was assigned on the case, and, from his investigation he discovered that William E. Drake, a driver in the employ of the grocers, had been in league with Webster. Drake delivered C. O. D. orders, and in place of turning in the money to the cashier of the firm, he handed it to Webster, who would credit the amount of the books.

Drake would then get a share of the money from Webster, who kept the larger part of it. Drake, when arrested, made a full confession, and he will be used as a witness against his partner in crime.

For the past two months Aloncle had been on the trail of Webster, and finally, through his wife, tracked the embezzler to St. Louis, where he was living under the name of E. Burton, and placed him under arrest. Justice McMahon held him for further examination.

to the Board of Expert Engineers appointed to determine the requiste length of span for the New York and New Jersey Bridge, the result of another boring that he made at their request yesterday, along a prolonged line of West Fifty-ninth street, 1,000 feet from he New Jersey shore. He stated that only at a depth of 253 feet at that point had he found a solid rock founda-

Union Bridge Company, contractors for the construction of the new bridge, stated to the Board that he would most probably present to-morrow to the Board, the full plans, specifications and tabulated calculations of resistant strains for the bridge.

Theodore Cooper, of the Board, told an "Evening World" reporter that the idea that the Board was organized to report on the plans and general specifications of the bridge was incorrect.

"All that the Board has to do," he said, "is to determine the length of the bridge's span, which is not to be less than 2.000 feet from pier to pier.

"As the proposed new bridge will have the greatest span of any bridge in the world, being some 540 feet longer than the Brocklyn Bridge span, and 340 feet more than the Forth Bridge in Scotland, now the longest in existence, the Board will have to make the closest scrutiny of foundations and weight strains before determining the exact length of span for the new bridge.

"The Hoard, while it will closely consider the plans, will not make any recommendations on them. The Secretary of War will pass on the bridge plans, and it remains for him to say whether they are accepted or rejected.

"The Board will meet every morning, except Saturdays, for the next two weeks. I think it will take nearly as long as that to examine borings and bridge plans before we can settle the length of span question."

Byck Brothers Cut Prices to Dispose of Their Present Stock.

Byck Brothers, the well known clothiers on the southwest corner of Fulton and Nassau streets, finding their present store room inadequate to their constantly increasing trade, and that additional space must be had immediately, have determined to clear out all the stock on hand at an unprecedented reduction.

They have cut the prices of their unequalled stock of fine clothing nearly in two. Suits that were $18 are now $10.50. $25 and $24 suits are reduced to $14.25. The observed and the dome on the had for $3.25, and $7 and $9 legs wear for $5. Fall overcoats formerly sold at from $15 to $35 can be had for $15. The trainer, however, says that while ging down or the lower up seem to paralalyze the animal's volition for the moment.

The trainer, however, says that while under this treatment the animal rarely harms the trainer wilfully, there is a danger that the muscles, under the strain of their unnatural position, may become paralyzed and contract automatically, taking with them a bit of the unfortunate trainer's head.

Another popular illusion is that tamers use hot irons to inspire their animals with fear. A hot iron could scarcely fail, sooner or later, to inflict serious disfigurement and injury. If it missed doing so directly it would do so indirectly, for the animal would inevitally seize the hot iron in his jaws. It is his first instinct, on being product, to strike at the prod and then take it in his mouth, and as in his rage he cares nothing for pain he would allow the iron to burn deep into his flesh rather than loosen his hold. And an animal once subjected to this treatment would be utterly spoiled for exhibition, if he did not fatally injure himself.

When the gong sounded this morning as a signal for the resumption of business at the Stock Exchange, it looked as though the bears would meet with more success than heretofore, but the sellers of stocks at declines of 1-8 to 3-4 from the final quotations of yesterday soon found out their mistake.

Word was received that the order calling out the Knights of Labor had been stopping work to-day they would continue in their places at least until Eriday. The natural supposition is that the warfous trades unions may decide it impolite to strike.

It is evident that the labor organizations are not a until in this matter, and that the troubles may terminate quickly without shedding any more blood or further destruction to property. BALLOONS IN WARFARE.

Could Be Used for Signalling a Night. Military authorities have long recog nized that there is yet much to be done in the field of signalling from balloons by means of the electric light. Hitherto night signalling has been carried on at a great disadvantage from the fact that the ordinary lanterns carried by the signalling corps when on foot are often disible at a comparatively short distance, and even more frequently rendered of no avail by the intervention of various obstructions, such as trees, buildings or rising ground.

It was at one time sought to overcome these objections by utilizing the clouds for reflecting flashes of light, nt includes net, valve top, h nling, sand bags and a special ventil-ated case for sea transport, a car being entirely dispensed with. The value of such a means of signalling in time of war may be gathered from the fact that in a recent test the signals were dis-cerned at a distance of upward of six-teen miles.

Carrie Fender, eighteen years old, or Port Jervis, N. Y., is in the City Hospital in Jersey City in a critical condition, the result of having taken a dose of carbolic acid with suicidal intent. The girl was found last night by the police in the woods back of the Brown place in the Greenville section of the city. She was unconscious, and an empty bottle containing the acid lay by her side. moned, and she was removed to the City Hospital.

The girl said that several months ago her mother married Henry S. Schrader, of Matamorris, a suburb of Port Jervis. She was unable to get along with her stepfather, and went to Jersey City, where she secured employment with Mrs. Coleman, of 78 Palisade avenue. A week ago she was notified by her mother that a warrant had been issued for her arrest for running away from home. The girl says she would prefer to be dead to again live with her stepfather, and that she left her place with Mrs. Coleman and went to live in Carey's wods with a Mrs. O'Brien. She became tired of this life, and, seeing no hope of relief from her troubles, purchased the carbolic acid and drank it.

The physicians think she will recover.
